The Wheel Deal

Speaking of art in public places and Ponce de Leon Boulevard, you may have noticed a large white carved wheel outside the Jaguar Land Rover Coral Gables dealership at the intersection of Ponce and US-1. This is no ordinary wheel, but a six-ton Carrara marble sculpture commissioned in 2020 by Ugo Colombo, owner of The Collection, of which the Jaguar Land Rover is a part. The 17-foot piece, entitled “Rotas” – the Latin word for “wheels” – was sculpted by Italian artist Fabio Viale. “Rotas’ perfectly combines the old world and new, while showcasing Italian design,” says Colombo. “We wish to not only share the beauty of Viale’s work, but to also usher in a new era of art in the City Beautiful.” It’s also not a bad way to bring attention to the new 534,000-square-foot dealership, with enough room to showcase two dozen cars, park another 1,000 cars, and serve customers with a lounge and Bistro by Bachour.
